Overview

Foundations in Autism Spectrum Disorders is an online self-study course presented in a multimedia format that includes audio and video. It is arranged into four modules:

- Module A: What is Autism?
- Module B: Educational Requirements
- Module C: Behaviorism
- Module D: Instructional Interventions

Each module has a number of lessons, which are organized as follows:

- Quick Look – A brief summary of the content presented in the lesson
- Learner Objectives – What you should expect to learn in the lesson
- Lesson Content – Information presented in a series of screens
- Key Points – A summary of the lessons most important information

The coursework is designed for you to

1. Listen, read and study each lesson at your own pace
2. Take a brief 10-question quiz at the end of each lesson
3. Take a 30-question assessment at the end of each module

This self-study course is also available in a printed version. Contact your principal about borrowing the manual. However, the quizzes and assessments must be taken online in order to receive credit for passing the course. Remember, you will still need the promo code shown above to register to take the quizzes and assessments.
